

Types Of Houses In Astrology

1. Kendras (Angular Houses)

The Kendras, or Angular Houses, are the most powerful and supportive houses in the chart, forming the four main pillars of life.

- Houses: 1st, 4th, 7th, and 10th
- Significance: These houses represent the four cardinal directions and key areas of stability and action in life.
- Effect: Planets placed here are generally strengthened and are instrumental in a person's achievements and overall well-being.

2. Trikonas (Trinal Houses)

The Trikonas, or Trinal Houses, are considered the most auspicious houses, often referred to as the "Dharma Houses" (houses of righteousness and purpose).

- Houses: 1st, 5th, and 9th
- Significance: They represent blessings, good fortune, and alignment with one's higher purpose.
- Effect: Planets here bestow favourable and easy-flowing results, indicating natural grace and spiritual progress.

3. Dusthanas (Evil or Malefic Houses)

The Dusthanas, or Evil Houses (also called Trikaasthanas), are houses associated with challenges, suffering, and obstacles in life.

- Houses: 6th, 8th, and 12th
- Significance: They deal with areas of struggle, transformation, and loss:
- Effect: Planets placed in or ruling these houses often bring difficulties, though they can also be agents of profound spiritual or personal growth if managed well.

4. Upachayas (Growing or Improving Houses)

The Upachayas, or Houses of Growth, are those where a planet's results and the area of life itself are said to improve and strengthen with time, effort, and maturity.

- Houses: 3rd, 6th, 10th, and 11th
- Significance: They represent areas that require effort and demonstrate cumulative progress.
- Effect: Even malefic planets are considered to do relatively well in Upachaya houses, as the challenges they bring can be overcome through consistent effort.